◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Nick's parents had finally given him permission to get a puppy. Nick was so excited about it that he could hardly wait to bring his puppy home. The family had decided that they would adopt a shelter puppy, so one Saturday, Nick and his parents visited the shelter where Nick volunteered. When they arrived, Nick told the shelter manager why they were there.

"That's wonderful!" said the manager. "We have two litters of puppies that are waiting for good homes. One is a litter of dalmatians, and the other is a litter of corgis." Nick and his parents looked at one another for a moment. Then, Nick said, "I'm pretty sure we don't have enough room in our home for a dalmatian. Could we look at the corgi puppies?"

"That sounds sensible," Mom said, "I like corgis, and I've heard that they're good family pets."

The manager escorted Nick and his parents to the room where the puppies lived. Within a moment, Nick had found the corgi puppy he wanted. "Look," he pointed. "That's the one I want!" Everyone looked at the puppy Nick had found. He was the smallest of the litter, but he looked healthy and friendly. The manager let Nick and his family cuddle the puppy and play with him for a few minutes. Then Nick said, "I'm absolutely sure about him, Mom and Dad."

Mom and Dad agreed that he was a good choice. Dad asked, "What's his name going to be? "How about Tucker? He looks like a Tucker, doesn't he?" Nick asked.

"Tucker it is," said the manager as she printed out the adoption papers. Mom and Dad signed the papers, and then the manager handed Nick and his parents a leash, a bag of food, and three dog toys. "Here are some important things you'll need," she said, handing Nick a list.

Nick looked at the list. They would need a kennel or crate, food and water dishes, and a lot more. "We'll have to go to the pet-supply store next," he told his parents.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Parents are often upset when their children praise the homes of their friends, and they regard it as a disadvantage of their own cooking, cleaning, or furniture, and often are foolish enough to let the teenagers see that they are annoyed. They may even accuse them of disloyalty, or make some spiteful remark about the friends' parents. Such a loss of dignity and descent into childish behaviour deeply shocks the adolescents, and makes them resolve that in future they will not tell their parents anything.

Before very long, the parents will be complaining that the child is secretive and never tells them anything, but they seldom realize that they have brought this on themselves. Disillusionment with the parents, however good and adequate they may be both as parents and as individuals, is to some degree inevitable. Most children have such a high ideal of their parents, unless the parents themselves have been unsatisfactory, that it can hardly hope to stand up to a realistic evaluation. Parents would be greatly surprised and deeply touched if they realized how much belief their children usually have in their character and infallibility, and how much this faith means to a child.

If parents were prepared for this adolescent reaction, and realized that this was a sign that the child was growing up and developing valuable powers of observation and independent judgment, they would not be so hurt, and therefore would not drive the child into opposition by resenting and resisting it.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

What do you know about Nobel Prizes? How much are they? To whom are they offered? Why? When? Nobel Prizes, awarded annually for distinguished work in chemistry, physics, physiology or medicine, literature and international peace, were made available by a fund bequeathed for that purpose by the Swedish philanthropist Alfred Bernhard Nobel. The will of the Swedish chemist, engineer and industrialist Alfred Nobel established the Nobel Prizes in 1895. The prizes awarded since 1901, are administrated by the Nobel Foundation in Stockholm. In 1969, a prize for economics endowed by the Central Bank of Sweden was added.

Candidates for the prizes must be nominated in writing by a qualified authority in the field of competition. Candidates are judged by Swedish and Norwegian academies and institutes on the basis of their contribution to mankind. The awards are usually presented in Stockholm on December 10, with the King of Sweden officiating, appropriate tribute to Alfred Nobel in the anniversary of his death. Each prize includes a medal, a diploma and a cash of about one million dollars.

It is a great honour for anyone who can get one of these awards because they are widely regarded as the most prestigious awards available in their respective fields. In 1978, President El-Sadat won the Nobel Prize in peace. In 1988, Naguib Mahfouz was the first Egyptian and Arab to win it in literature. Dr Ahmed Zewail was awarded this prize in 1999 in chemistry. Do you think other Egyptians can get it in the future?

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Did you know that animals can spy and retrieve information? People have trained animals to perform useful tasks, do entertaining tricks, and provide information as spies during wartime.

Often, the techniques and principles used to train animals for useful tasks have their roots in behavioural conditioning, as first described by B.F. Skinner. Subjects are trained to do things voluntarily based on cues in the environment. Rewards or consequences shape the likelihood of repeated behaviour in the future. In classic experiments, animals learn to associate an action with a reward.

During the Cold War, ravens الغربان السوداء were trained to deposit and retrieve objects. The birds could recognize characteristics of objects and would be instructed accordingly. For, a raven could be taught to always fly to a large or small table. Ravens are also able to carry quite a bit of weight, so they could transport objects that contained a message.

Intelligence agencies have also experimented with training cats. In one such instance, each feline was fitted with a wire, battery, and instruments to create a transmitter. While directing the cat remotely with ultrasonic sound, operators could eavesdrop on critical communications.

Advocates of such programs cite animals' low profiles as a benefit. People are less likely to pay attention to an animal arriving and leaving. In addition, animals can get into places people can't. On the downside, animals require ongoing training, care, and maintenance.

The details of specific intelligence programs actually put into use are relatively unknown. Many documents and records are classified information or have since been destroyed. It's safe to say, though, that studies in animal training for intelligence and security tasks continue. K-9 dog police units are one such example.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

There was once a man called Ali who was travelling home with his friends through a hot, dry land. It was the hottest month of the summer. On their way, they met a poor stranger, dressed in rags. He was hungry and thirsty and had no money. He asked if he could join them. The travellers felt sorry for him. They welcomed him, gave him a drink and continued their journey through the desert.

It was not long before they lost their way. The sun beat down even harder. The ground became more sandy and dusty. There were no rivers or springs in sight. There were no water wells nearby. Soon, their water began to run out. The situation was bad. They decided that the only way to survive was to ration the water that was left between them. Each day, each person drank just one small cupful when they stopped for the night. One evening, when it was Ali's turn to drink, he noticed the stranger staring at him. He immediately turned to the water-carrier and said to him, 'Give my water to my brother, the stranger.' The stranger drank Ali's share of the water, for he was very thirsty. Ali had nothing to drink. The next day the same thing happened again. Each day Ali became weaker and weaker.

One morning, the stranger called Ali to tell him it was time to get up and get on his camel. "Get up, Ali. We are not far from water now. Soon you will be able to drink as much water as you like," he said. Ali's friends looked at the stranger curiously. "How do you know we are not far from water?" they asked. The stranger smiled. He picked Ali up and put him on a camel. "Follow me, he told Ali's friends". They walked for a few kilometres. Then they stopped in astonishment. The stranger had repaid Ali's kindness.

He had led them to an oasis!

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Nature offers spectacular examples of "true flight." This refers to the ability to lift and hover above the ground without forward motion to provide these forces. People have long been intrigued with the concept of vertical flight, and as we've observed the hummingbird and the dragonfly, we've been able to develop technology [such as the helicopter] that mimics their behavior. The hummingbird hawk-moth is another animal that has the same flight dynamics.

Although this moth gets the first part of its name from its flight patterns, it resembles a hummingbird in other ways as well. The moth has a long, straw-like mouth, which it uses to gather nectar from flowers. While hovering, it emits an audible humming noise. Its constant wing movement requires large amounts of food, similar to hummingbirds.

Hummingbird hawk-moths keep track of flowers they have already visited. This conserves energy since the moth doesn't return to empty flowers. The need for calories is so strong, they may even feed while mating. As the second part of this animal's name implies, it is a moth, not a bird. As an insect, it pollinates various garden flowers such as honeysuckle.

The hummingbird hawk-moth is native to warm climates. It makes its home in parts of Europe, North Africa, and Asia. It is a strong flier, particularly during the summer months. The moth does not tolerate cold weather well, and adults typically spend winter in crevices of rocks, trees, and buildings. Although in a different group, a similar moth known as a "bee moth" can be found in various parts of North America.

Hummingbird hawk-moths have good vision and are able to learn colors. The moth has the ability to fly during the day, at dawn and dusk, and even in the rain. As we continue to study these unusual creatures, there is the potential for even more technological developments and benefits to humans.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Cindy had wanted her parents to take her camping ever since her friend, Julie, had told her how much fun camping was. They had researched campgrounds and found a good one. They had also gotten the camping supplies they needed. Now, they were at the campground settling in.

Cindy and her father set up the tent while her mother got the camp stove ready. It was hard work to get all the tent poles up, and twice, the tent fell down while they were working on it. But finally, the tent was in place. Cindy unrolled the sleeping bags, and her mom checked the tent and the area around it for snakes. Cindy thought her mom was awfully brave to do that. While Cindy and her mom got the camp area ready, her dad got some small twigs and sticks and started the campfire. When the fire was ready, Cindy and her parents got out the hot dogs, rolls, and other food they had packed. They roasted hot dogs, and later, they cooked marshmallows. Cindy thought it was delicious!

"It began to get late, so everyone settled down for the night. For a long time, it was very quiet, and Cindy started to fall asleep. It was so peaceful! Then, all of a sudden, Cindy heard a strange noise. It sounded like splashing, but it wasn't raining, so Cindy knew that what she was hearing wasn't rain. The noise stopped and then started again. Now, Cindy began to get scared. At first she didn't know what to do, but then she took a deep breath and crawled out of her sleeping bag. She crept to the door of the tent and peeked out. It was only her dad pouring extra water on the fire! "I'm not going to be scared of anything again," Cindy promised herself as she curled back up in her sleeping bag.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Tropical cyclones are called typhoons in Asia and hurricanes in North and South America. These storms go around like a wheel turning to the left when they hit in the northern part of the world. They have wind speeds of 60 kph or more. In the United States, the Tropical Prediction Center in Miami, Florida keeps an eye out for hurricanes.

When meteorologists detect a hurricane, they give it a name. They can use either a male or female name. Why should tropical cyclones have names? The name makes it easier for people to keep up with information about a hurricane and its possible dangers. The World Meteorological Organization (WMO), an international weather group, decides what names will be used.

The WMO makes lists of names using the English alphabet. Each name on the list starts with a different letter. The first hurricane of the year gets the first name on that year's list. The second hurricane gets the next name. For example, if the first hurricane is named Abel, the second might be named Betty. The name lists do not include names beginning with the letters Q, U, X, Y, and Z. There aren't many names that begin with these letters.

Asian countries use a different list, which is made up by the WMO's Typhoon Committee.

This list has a few personal names, but most of the names are of flowers, animals, trees, and other similar things.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Did you have cereal for breakfast this morning? If you did, you're not alone. Millions of people eat cereal for breakfast every day. In fact, cereal is popular all over the world. It all started with one man, Will Keith Kellogg.

Will was born on April 7, 1860, in Battle Creek, Michigan. His first job was as a stock boy at the Battle Creek Sanitarium. A sanitarium is a special kind of place that is a little like a hospital. A sanitarium is meant for people who are ill for a long time or who are getting over a serious illness. Will had other jobs as he got older.

But when he grew up, he became manager of the sanitarium. His brother, John, was the chief doctor there.

One big problem at the sanitarium was the patients' diets. The patients needed healthy diets, but it was also important for the food to taste good. Will was trying to find a good food choice to take the place of bread, but it wasn't going very well. Then, by accident, Will found something even better. He left some wheat to cook too long. When it was rolled out, it formed large, thin flakes. He asked his brother to serve it to the patients, and they loved it! In fact, they liked it so much that they wanted breakfast flakes sent to them even after they left the sanitarium. So, Will started a new business in 1884: selling packaged breakfast flakes. Before long, Kellogg's breakfast cereal was popular in other countries, too. Today, there are many kinds of breakfast cereals. But it all started with one man and one idea.

Will did more than just create breakfast flakes. His company made a lot of money. But he did not keep it. He used much of his money to help children. He also used his money to help in several other charities. Will Kellogg died in 1951. But his most famous invention is as popular as ever.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Man's life has been subject to a lot of changes during the last hundred years, particularly in what is connected with his consuming habits. Sixty years ago, before the start of the consumer societies of today's world, people did not throw away so many of the things they used. They used and re-used bottles, jars, cardboard boxes, paper bags, etc much more carefully than we do today. Now, more than fifty years later, we are returning to the same good idea which we now call "recycling".

We can again think about what we throw out. Why do we throw away so much food packaging, so many plastic supermarket bags, old newspapers, old books, bottles and cans? What is all this rubbish doing to our environment, to the world we live in? Can't we use some of it again? The answer is: yes, we can.

New industries, recycling industries, are starting to re-use some of our rubbish. For example, the island of Taiwan now buys waste paper from the USA and recycles it to make newspapers, and for use in offices and homes. Japan takes scrap metal from the USA and makes some new parts with it. Most European and American cities now have "recycling centers" for people's old bottles and newspapers.

All this recycling is not only good for the environment, but it is good business, too. For instance, a recycled aluminum container is 20% cheaper to make a new one. For both the environment and the economy, recycling makes very good sense.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

When you use language, you say words and the person you are speaking to hears what you say. Then, that person can respond to you. But some people do not hear very well-some people cannot hear at all. People who do not hear are deaf. Because they are unable to hear sound, they don't use spoken language. Instead, they use sign language. In the United States, the sign language many deaf people use is called American Sign Language [ASL]. ASL is a very common language. In fact, in America, only English and Spanish are more common. Deaf children learn ASL just as children who can hear learn a spoken language.

ASL is a language just as English and Spanish are languages, but ASL uses hand signs and facial expressions instead of spoken words. For example, when you want to say the words please or yes, you pronounce them aloud, but in ASL, there are special signs for these words. You can learn these signs yourself. To say please in ASL, put the palm of your hand on your chest. Now, keeping your hand flat, make a circle with your palm. You have just made the ASL sign for please. To say yes in ASL, make a fist and then gently move your fist up and down as if it were a head nodding. You have made the ASL sign for yes.

Are you interested in learning more ASL? You have several options for learning. Some schools offer ASL classes. There are also online ASL classes that can help you to acquire the language. You can ask your parents about signing up for classes. There are also online ASL dictionaries and pictures. If you decide to learn ASL, you will want to practise every day. That way, you will get better and better at using signs. If you do, you will learn to communicate in a whole new way!

◆ Choose the correct answer from a , b , c or d :

12. How do ASL and English compare?
  - a. They are both languages.
  - b. They both use spoken words.
  - c. They both use signs and facial expressions instead of words.
  - d. They are both languages without sounds.
13. Which is not a fact about ASL?
  - a. It is offered in classes.
  - b. It is a common language.
  - c. It is not very common.
  - d. It uses hand signs and facial expressions.
14. Which could be a purpose for reading this text?
  - a. To learn about new languages
  - b. To become an expert in ASL
  - c. To learn facts about ASL
  - d. To learn about deafness
15. What inference can be made about online ASL dictionaries?
  - a. They are guides to pronouncing ASL signs.
  - b. They have pictures of people using ASL signs.
  - c. They offer a way to hear ASL.
  - d. They include syllable guides to ASL signs.
16. Which of the following is likely the author's opinion?
  - a. ASL is too hard to learn.
  - b. ASL is an interesting language.
  - c. ASL is exactly like English.
  - d. ASL is boring.

17. Which would be the most helpful way to practise ASL signs?
- Practise with people who know ASL.
  - Listen to people using ASL.
  - Use a sound recorder and then listen to it yourself.
  - Read about the history of ASL.
18. Why do people with deafness need a language with hand signs?
- Because they cannot learn ASL.
  - Because they cannot see facial expressions.
  - Because they need a language that they can hear.
  - Because they cannot hear spoken words.
19. A person can learn ASL signs if they understand .....

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

The application of spreading theories of economics has so far failed to lift developing countries out of the cycle of poverty that has effects on the majority of their inhabitants. Worldwide, there are still an estimated 1.3 billion people earning a dollar or less a day and living in extreme poverty. Decades of huge loans by banks from affluent nations-at interest rates that cripple developing economies-do not appear to be providing a solution to poverty. Professor Muhammad Yunus' Grameen Bank, however, is taking a different approach to the problem.

In 1976, the Bangladeshi economics professor started a microcredit programme with a loan of just 62 cents [U.S.] each to a group of 42 workers. Instead of loaning large amounts of money to well-off debtors, the bank he started made extremely small loans to poor Bangladeshis who were considered a bad risk by the traditional banking system.

He astounded his critics by proving that the poor were more likely to repay their debts than the wealthy. Virtually none of the thousands of women who have been financially assisted by the bank for over 20 years have defaulted on their payments. Yet all are expected to pay interest and stick to the rules of contract. These borrowings have enabled Bangladeshi women to set up numerous small-scale projects which directly benefit their families and the communities where they live. The success of the experiment has brought about a revolution in the anti-poverty programmes.

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

Dear Amal,

In your last email, you told me about your aunt. I am very impressed that she is going to get a degree in law now that her children have left home. You asked me if I knew anyone else who had studied when they were older. I don't know anyone, but I heard about an amazing woman in a report on the radio. The report said that a woman had started primary school at the age of 90! The woman, whose name is Priscilla Sitienei, lives in a rural village in Kenya. When she was younger, she was not able to go to school. She worked for 65 years as a nurse. Although she was good at her job, she never learned to read or write.

In 2003, the government of Kenya said that primary school would be free for everyone for the first time. Priscilla wanted to learn to read and write and decided to go to primary school with six of her great-great-grandchildren. She said that it was never too late to learn new skills and she wanted to inspire other adults to do the same. Now she is learning maths, English and PE. She wears the same blue and green uniform as her fellow pupils. The head teacher of the school said that Priscilla was loved by every pupil and that they all wanted to learn and play with her. At break, she tells the other pupils about the customs that she grew up with.

At the end of the report, Priscilla said that she wanted to tell the world's children that with education, they could be whatever they wanted. She is certainly a remarkable woman!

Best wishes,
Azza

◆ Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Most people know that the first man on the moon was Neil Armstrong in 1969. However, since that time, the moon has been visited by eleven other men but they are not so famous. Who were these other space pioneers?

In 1969, four months after Neil Armstrong and his colleague Buzz Aldrin stayed on the surface of the moon for 21 hours, Alan Bean and Pete Conrad spent two days there. Bean is also an artist, and is the only person on earth who is able to paint space scenes that he had actually seen. In 1971, Alan Shepard and Edgar Mitchel went on a mission to study earthquakes on the moon (known as moon quakes). Shepard also enjoyed a game of golf there: because there is very little gravity, he hit the ball farther than any professional golf player on earth!

Seven months later, two more astronauts stayed for nearly three days on the moon. David Scott and James Irwin took along a special vehicle which meant they could travel around. They returned to earth with many moon rocks. In 1972, John Young and Charles Duke landed in the moon's mountains for the first time.

The moon was last visited at the end of 1972. Eugene Cernan and Harrison Schmitt explored the moon for three days, longer than any other astronaut. Schmitt was a geologist before he became an astronaut and he did a number of scientific experiments there. Before they returned to earth, Cernan wrote his daughter's name on the moon's surface. There is no weather on the moon, so he knew that there was nothing that would wear the letters away. They are probably there today!

There are now plans to get astronauts to visit the moon again, although nobody knows when this might be.
